Community Supported Agriculture (CSA)

Questions and Answers

What is CSA?

Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) is a commitment that deepens the connection between eaters, producers, and the land. Membership dues provide capital for an entire season of growth, and members themselves generate the trust and goodwill that incentivize and invigorate a bountiful, rewarding season. As farmers, we cannot overstate the power of this commitment. By joining our CSA, you are the culture in local, small-scale, diversified agri-culture.

Why join?

The freshest food. More veggies in your diet. Supporting local businesses. Reconnecting with land. Investing in restoration and biodiversity. Knowing the face, hands, and family behind your food. Diversifying your diet. Exploration of new tastes and flavors. A sun-ripened tomato. Melons that slip right off the vine. Green beans galore. Celebrating abundance. Living the season.

How does it work?

Diggin Roots Farm offers 20 main season CSA shares, from mid-June through Thanksgiving. In general, shares are weekly; In the Fall, every other week. You identify which pick-up location and share size works best for you. For Portland pick-up sites, boxes are packed for you and you repack into bags to take home. On-farm it is a market-style pickup, where you "shop" for items in each week's share from an abundant display.

What's in a share?

The chart below outlines some seasonal vegetables one could expect to find in her share. When crops are especially abundant, CSA members share in the bounty. Weather, pests, and other worldly forces inevitably influence production. In addition to a share of vegetables, members receive a weekly email update with crop-related information, seasonal recipe ideas, and other farm related news.

Month Harvested	Expected Crops
June to July	Beets, broccoli, carrots, lettuce, cilantro, spinach, radish, fennel, green onions & garlic, kale, chard, snap & snow peas, kohlrabi, radish, turnips.
August to September	Green beans, summer squash, tomatoes, peppers, eggplants, basil, melons, fava beans, cabbage, lettuce, bunched greens, onions, garlic, broccoli, cilantro, cucumbers, potatoes, dill, parsley, beets, carrots, and leeks.
October to November	Peppers, winter squash, carrots, beets, potatoes, bunched greens, cabbage, cilantro, dill, parsley, fennel, broccoli, chicory, popcorn, celeriac, spinach, radish, parsnips, garlic, onions, shallots, leeks, and kohlrabi.

Are there different share sizes?

We offer three share options:

- Full Share: Full shares typically contain 8-12 varieties equivalent to 1-2 grocery bags of produce. For reference, our goal with a full share is to provide a four-person family enough produce for a week, though this rate of use will ultimately depend on the culinary culture of each household.
- Partial Share: A little more than half of the produce included in a full share (6-9 items)! This share could feed one or two adults, or a family that consistently dines out.
- Market Share: You choose what you want from our booth at the Silverton Farmer's Market and we'll subtract it from your total credit. The full market share costs $400 and gives you $440 (10% discount) to spend at our Silverton

Farmer's Market booth from late May to early October. Your balance cannot roll over to another year or be used for purchases outside of our market stand.

Can I split a share?

Members who split a full share are responsible for coordination and should designate one person to gather the complete share each week. Otherwise, if share size is a concern, we encourage folks to consider a partial share.

What if a crop fails?

We love this work for many reasons, not the least of which are the smiles on members' faces when they hold a beautiful, bountiful share. This land is a generous host, and a firm teacher. Naturally, the composition of vegetables will vary through the seasons, each phase offering unique lessons and rewards to us farmers. Some production factors (extreme weather, pests, disease) will require short-term compromise and long-term remediation. In the unlikely event of significant crop failure, we adjust for the failed crops by filling shares with other crops ready for harvest. Only in rare instances might there be reduction in share size.

How is it grown?

We intend to care for this place as we care for our own bodies and for the health and well being of our family and friends. Previous to our tenure, this land was managed conventionally. Diggin' Roots Farm must therefore wait until May 2015 to establish organic certification. In the meantime, we focus on techniques that build soil health and increase biodiversity. Your food is grown without conventional pesticides, bioengineering, ionizing radiation, and synthetic fertilizers or "bio-solids" (aka. sewage sludge). For more information about our production practices, please ask, or visit our website.

Where and When do I get my share?

There are four options for pick-up location:

- On-farm (9997 S Wildcat Rd, Molalla) Tuesdays from 4-7pm.
  - We'll also be hosting a farm stand, where you may purchase additional veggies as needed.
- Portland
  - Portland Homestead Supply in the Sellwood neighborhood (8012 SE 13th Ave). Wednesdays 3-6pm
  - SE Wine Collective off of SE Division (2425 SE 35th Pl). Wednesdays 4-7pm
    - CSA members will receive a 10% Discount on any bottle(s) of wine to take home during pick-up.
- Market shares are available at the Silverton Farmer's Market only.

Please contact us if you are interested in hosting a new pick-up location.

What if I miss a pick up?

If you cannot pick-up your share, please arrange for someone else to pick it up for you. We ask that members explain the pick-up location and procedure to any substitute folks. Shares that are not retrieved during the pick-up time will be donated to a food pantry or to the drop site host.

Can we get meat, eggs, or other local foods through your CSA?

Yes! We are always looking to include new things with your veggies. Our long-term goal is to offer a more 'full-diet' CSA including meats, eggs, honey, grains, etc. In the short-term, we are raising meat and know a number of other farmers & local producer friends with goodies to share. Please identify what you'd be interested in on the sign-up form.

Are there payment options?

Yes. While we prefer full payments upfront, you may pay in two installments.
